A fine canoe does not just happen. Creation of the Wonacott canoe is a consequence of Ray Wonacott's personal desire for a superior canoe of unique design and quality, with traditional appearance. More than seven years have gone into its development and testing.

We are extremely proud to make the Wonacott canoe available to other discriminating canoeist-sportsmen. Only the highest grade materials are selected for its construction. The hull planking is of clear straight grain Western Red Cedar in warm natural colors. Though more expensive and difficult to apply; abrasion resistant, high strength Epoxy Resin is employed in the fiberglass layup and coating, instead of commonly used polyester resin. The great amount of hand work required is performed by expert craftsmen. Close inspection will reveal the basis for our claim that the canoe is such that it is well received by the closest critic.

Going by canoe is the ideal mode to get away from it all. Whether it is on a nearby stream or pond, or an extended excursion into the wilds.

What better way to go: Enjoying nature at its undisturbed best — Cruising a beautiful lake shore — Drifting a quiet stream — Running an exciting rapid — Canoe-camping in scenic, unspoiled wild areas. Old haunts take on new charm when explored by canoe. Canoeing compliments other sports wonderfully. Whether its the fly fisherman in quest of the wily trout, the hunter quietly drifting up on ducks, or stalking a moose in the back country.

Canoes illustrated herein are 16 feet in length.
